 Semantic Quality Evaluation (Gold Standard Matrix)

This tab tests the actual quality and meaning of the open-source models' outputs by mathematically comparing them against a "Golden Answer". We use a powerful Cloudflare Model (like Llama 3.3 70B) as the ultimate Judge to generate the perfect reference answer, and then we use semantic embeddings (Cosine Similarity) to see which open-source model matches it closest!

The discussion in the parliamentary data revolves around the Women's Reservation Bill, which aims to provide 33 percent reservation for women in legislatures. The bill has been pending in Parliament for a long time, and there have been questions raised about the government's plans to implement it. In 2019, a question was asked about the bill's status, and the Minister of Law and Justice responded that the Constitution (One Hundred and Eighth Amendment) Bill, which provides for 33 percent reservation for women, is pending in Parliament.

In 2024, another question was asked about the implementation of women's reservation in the forthcoming general election. The Minister of State in the Ministry of Law and Justice responded that there is no proposal to implement women's reservation in the ensuing general election. The minister also stated that the government is aware of the practice of "Pradhan Pati" that exists in rural India, where a woman's husband or male relative represents her in public life. The government has been asked to take steps to ensure that such practices do not repeat in Union and State Legislatures post the implementation of the Women's Reservation Bill.

The data also provides statistics on poverty alleviation and housing in various states, including Tamil Nadu, Telangana, Tripura, Uttarakhand, Uttar Pradesh, West Bengal, and others. However, these statistics do not appear to be directly related to the discussion on the Women's Reservation Bill. The parliamentary questions and answers focus on the bill's status, implementation, and the government's plans to ensure women's representation in legislatures. The ministers' responses suggest that the government is aware of the issue, but there is no clear timeline for the bill's passage or implementation.
